

Artist: Frédéric Auguste Bartholdi*Biography:*

Frédéric Auguste Bartholdi was a French sculptor best known for designing the Statue of Liberty. Born in Colmar, France, in 1834, Bartholdi studied sculpture in Paris and developed a reputation for his neoclassical style. The Statue of Liberty, a colossal gift from France to the United States, stands as his most iconic creation. Symbolizing the ideals of liberty, justice, and opportunity, it has become an enduring symbol of freedom and democracy. Bartholdi's dedication to creating monumental sculptures that inspire and uplift humanity is evident in his works.
